

PUR

- Emroid tuffs, flow'rs purpled blue and white;
Like saphire, pearl, in rich embroidery,
Buckled below fair knight's boding knee. Shaksp.
Iris there with humid bow,
Waters the odorous banks that blow
Flowers, of more mingled hew,
Than her purpled earl's can shew. Milton.
In velvet white as snow the troop was gown'd,
Their hoods and sleeves the same, and purpled o'er
With diamonds. Dryden.
PURPLE. n. f. [purpura, Fr. from the verb.] A border of PURPLE. f. embroidery.
PURGATION. n. f. [purgatio, Fr. purgatio, Lat.]
1. The act of cleansing or purifying from vitious mixtures.
We do not suppose the separation finished, before the pur- gation of the air began. Burnet's Theory of the Earth.
2. The act of cleansing the body by downward evacuation.
Let the physician apply himself more to purgation than to alteration, because the effect is in quantity. Bacon.
3. The act of clearing from imputation of guilt.
If any man doubt, let him put me to my purgation. Shak.
Proceed in justice, which shall have due course,
Even to the guilt of the purgation. Shaksp.
PURGATIVE. adj. [purgativus, Fr. purgativus, Lat.] Cathartic; having the power to cause evacuations downward.
Purgative medicines have their purgative virtue in a fine spirit, they endure not boiling without loss of virtue. Bacon.
All that is fill'd, and all that which doth fill
All the round world, to man is but a pill;
In all it works not, but it is in all Poisonous, or purgative, or cordial. Donne.
Lenient purgatives evacuate the humours. Wise.
PURGATORY. n. f. [purgatorium, Fr. purgatorium, Lat.] A place in which souls are supposed by the papists to be purged by fire from carnal impurities, before they are received into heaven.
Thou thy folk, through pains of purgatory,
Doest bear unto thy bliss. Spenser's Hymn on Love.
In this age, there may be as great instances produced of real charity, as when men thought to get souls out of purga- tory. Stillingsfleet.
TO PURGE. v. a. [purgo, Fr. purgo, Lat.]
1. To cleanse; to clear.
It will be like that labour of Hercules, in purging the stable of Augeas, to separate from superfluous observations any thing that is clean and pure natural. Bacon.
2. To clear from impurities.
To the English court assemble now
From every region apes of idleness;
Now neighbour confines purge you of your scum. Shaksp.
Air ventilates and cools the mines, and purges and frees them from mineral exhalations. Woodward.
3. To clear from guilt.
Blood hath been shed ere now, i' th' olden time
Ere human statute purged the general weal. Shaksp.
My foul is purged from grudging hate;
And with my hand I seal my true heart's love. Shaksp.
The blood of Christ shall purge our conscience from dead works to serve God. Heb. ix. 14.
Syphax, we'll join our cares to purge away
Our country's crimes, and clear her reputation. Addison.
4. To clear from imputation of guilt.
He, I accuse, Intends t' appear before the people, hoping
To purge himself with words. Shaksp. Coriolanus.
Marquis Dorset was hasting towards him, to purge himself of some accusation. Bacon's Henry VII.
5. To sweep or put away impurities.
I will purge out from among you the rebels. Ezek. xx. 38.
Simplicity and integrity in the inward parts, may purge out every prejudice and passion. Deacy of Piety.
6. To evacuate the body by stool.
Sir Philip Calthrop purged John Drakes, the shoemaker of Norwich, of the proud humour. Camden's Remains.
The frequent and wife use of emaciating diets, and of purg- ings, is a principal means of a prolongation of life. Bacon.
If he was not cured, he purged him with salt water. Arbutnot.
7. To clarify; to defecate.
TO PURGE. v. n. To have frequent stools.
PURGE. n. f. [from the verb.] A cathartic medicine; a medicine that evacuates the body by stool.
Meet we the medicine of the sickly weal,
And with him pour we in our country's purge
Each drop of us. Shaksp.
Pills nor laxatives I like;
Of these his gain the sharp physician makes,
And often gives a purge, but seldom takes. Dryden.
He was no great friend to purging and clifters; he was for mixing ales with all purges. Arbutnot.
PURGER. n. f. [from purge.]
1. One who clears away any thing noxious.

PUR

- This shall make
Our purpose necessary, and not envious;
We shall be call'd purgers, not murderers. Shaksp.
2. Purge; cathartic.
It is of good use in physick, if you can retain the purging virtue, and take away the unpleasant taste of the purger. Lat.
PURIFICATION. n. f. [purificatio, Fr. purificatio, Lat.]
1. The act of making pure; act of cleansing from extraneous mixtures.
I discerned a considerable difference in the operations of feveral kinds of saltpetre, even after purification. Boyle.
2. The act of cleansing from guilt.
The sacraments, in their own nature, are just such as they seem, water, and bread, and wine; but because they are made signs of a secret mystery, and water is the symbol of purification of the soul from sin, and bread and wine, of Christ's body and blood; therefore the symbols receive the names of what they sign. Taylor's Holy Communion.
3. A rite performed by the Hebrews after childbearing.
PURIFICATIVE. adj. [from purify.] Having power or tendency to make pure.
PURIFIER. n. f. [from purify.] Cleanser; refiner.
He shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver. Mel. iii. 3.
TO PURIFY. v. a. [purifico, Fr. purifico, Lat.]
1. To make pure.
2. To free from any extraneous admixture.
If any bad blood should be left in the kingdom, an honourable foreign war will vent or purify it. Bacon's Henry VII.
The mals of the air was many thousand times greater than the water, and would in proportion require a greater time to be purified. Burnet's Theory of the Earth.
By chase our long-liv'd fathers can't their loods,
Toil string the nerves, and purified the blood. Dryden.
3. To make clear.
It ran upon so fine and delicate a ground, as one could not easily judge, whether the river did more wash the gravel, or the gravel did purify the river. Sidney, b. ii.
4. To free from guilt or corruption.
He gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people. Tit. ii. 14.
If God gives grace, knowledge will not stay long behind;
since it is the same spirit and principle that purifies the heart, and clarifies the understanding. South's Sermon.
5. To free from pollution, as by lustration.
There were fex fix water pots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews. Jo. ii. 6.
6. To clear from barbarisms or improprieties.
He saw the French tongue abundantly purified. Sparr.
TO PURIFY. v. n. To grow pure.
We do not suppose the separation of these two liquors wholly finished, before the purification of the air began, though let them begin to purify at the same time. Burnet.
PURITY. n. f. [puritas, Fr. puritas, Lat.] One superstitiously nice in the use of words.
PURITAN. n. f. [from pure.] A sectary pretending to eminent purity of religion.
The schism which the papists on the one hand, and the superstition which the puritans on the other, lay to our charge, are very justly chargeable upon themselves. Sanders.
PURITANICAL. adj. [from puritan.] Relating to puritans.
Such guides set over the several congregations will mislead them, by infilling into them puritanical and superstitious principles, that they may the more securely exercise their prebyterian tyranny. Watson.
PURITANISM. n. f. [from puritan.] The notions of a puritan.
A serious and impartial examination of the grounds, as well of popery as puritanisms, according to that measure of understanding God hath afforded me. Watson.
PURITY. n. f. [puritas, Fr. puritas, Lat.]
1. Cleanliness; freedom from foulness or dirt.
Her urn
Pours streams select, and purity of waters. Prior.
From the body's purity, the mind
Receives a secret aid. Thomson's Summer.
2. Freedom from guilt; innocence.
Death sets us safely on shore in our long-expected Canaan, where there are no temptations, no danger of falling, but eternal purity and immortal joys secure our innocence and happinefs for ever. Wake's Preparation for Death.
3. Chastity; freedom from contamination of sexes.
Could I come to her with any detection in my hand, I could drive her then from the ward of her purity, her reputation, and her marriage vow. Shaksp. Merry Wives of Windsor.
PURE. n. f. [from purify.] This is justly supposed by Minerva to be contracted from purify.
1. An embroidered and puckered border.
Himself came in next after a triumphant chariot made of carnation velvet, enriched with pure and pearls. Sidney.
The juggling of pinks is like the inequality of oak leaves;
but they seldom have any small pure. Bacon.
2. [I know not whence derived.] A kind of medicated male liquor, in which wormwood and aromatics are infused.
TO PURE.

PUR

- TO PURL. v. n. [of this word it is doubtful what is the pri- mitive signification; if it is referred originally to the appearance of a quick stream, which is always dimpled on the surface, it may come from purle, a pucker or fringe; but if, as the use of authors seem to show, it relates to the sound, it must be derived from perle, Swedish, to murmur, according to Mr. Lye.] To murmur; to flow with a gentle noise.
Tones are not apt to procure sleep, as some other sounds;
as the wind, the purling of water, and humming of bees.
Instruments that have returns, as trumpets; or flexions, as cornets; or are drawn up, and put from, as factubs, have a purling sound; but the recorder or flute, that have none of these inequalities, give a clear sound. Bacon.
All fish from sea or shore,
Freshet, or purling brook, or shell or fin. Milton.
My flow'ry theme,
A painted mistle, or a purling stream. Pope.
Around th' adjoining brook, that purle along
The vocal grove, now fretting o'er a rock. Thomson.
TO PURLE. v. a. To decorate with fringe or embroidery.
When was old Sherwood's head more quaintly curl'd,
Or nature's cradle more enchas'd and purld. B. Johnson.
PO'RLU. n. f. The grounds on the borders of a forest; border; inclosure.
In the purlius of this forest stands
A sheepee, fence'd about with olive trees. Shaksp.
Such civil matters fall within the purlius of religion. L'Estr.
To understand all the purlius of this place, and to illustrate this subject, I must venture myself into the haunts of beauty and gallantry. Spektator.
He may be left to rot among thieves in some stinking jail, merely for mistaking the purlius of the law. Swift.
A party next of glit'ring dames,
Thrown round the purlius of St. James,
Came early out. Swift.
PURLIUS. n. f. In architecture, those pieces of timber that lie across the rafters on the inside, to keep them from sinking in the middle of their length. Bailey.
TO PURLOIN. v. a. [from purloin, Fr. purloin, Lat.] To steal;
to pillohn, Sax. to lie hid.] To steal; to take by theft.
He, that brave deed there finding ready dress,
Purloin'd both steel and spear, and ran away full light. F. 2.
The Arimaspian by stealth
Had, from his waked custody, purloin'd
The guarded gold. Milton.
They not content like felons to purloin,
Add treason to it, and debate the coin. Denham.
Some writers make all ladies purloin'd,
And knights purloining like a whirlwind. Hudibras.
When did the muse from Fletcher scenes purloin,
As thou whole Ethridge dost transfuse to mine? Dryden.
Your butter purloins your liquor, and the brewer sells your hog-wash. Arbutnot's History of John Bull.
Prometheus once this chain purloin'd, Dissoild, and into money sold. Swift.
PURLOINER. n. f. [from purloin.] A thief; one that steals clandestinely.
It may seem hard, to see publick purloiners sit upon the lives of the little ones, that go to the gallows. L'Estrange.
PURPARTY. n. f. [from purpart, Fr. Share; part in division.
Each of the coparceners had an entire county allotted for her purparty. Davies on Ireland.
PURPLE. adj. [purpure, Fr. purpureus, Lat.]
1. Red inclur'd with blue.
The poop was beaten gold,
Purple the sails, and so perfum'd, that
The winds were love-sick with c'm. Shaksp.
You violets, that first appear,
By your pure purple mantles known;
What are you when the rose is blown?
A small oval plate, cut off a flinty pebble, and polished, is prettily variegated with a pale grey, blue, yellow, and purple. Woodward on Fossils.
2. In poetry, red.
I view a field of blood,
And Tyber rolling with a purple flood. Dryden.
Their mangled limbs
Crashing at once, death dyes the purple seas
With gore. Thomson's Summer.
TO PURPLE. v. a. [from purple, Lat.] To make red; to colour with purple.
Whiff your purpled hands do reek and smok, Fulfil your pleasure. Shaksp. Julius Caesar.
Cruel and suddain, hast thou since
Purpled thy nail in blood of innocence?
Though fall'n on evil days,
In darkness, and with dangers compass'd round,
And solitude I yet, not alone, while thou Villit't my slumbers nightly; or when morn
Purples the East. Milton's Par. Lost, b. xxx.

PUR

- Throw hither all your quaint enamel'd eyes,
That on the green turf suck the honied show'rs,
And purple all the ground with vernal flow'rs. Milton.
Aurora had but newly chas'd the night,
And purpled o'er the sky with blushing light. Dryden.
Not with more glories in th' ethereal plain,
The sun first rises o'er the purpled main. Pope.
Reclining soft in blissful bow'rs,
Purpled sweet with springing flow'rs. Penton.
PURPLES. n. f. [without a singular.] Spots of a livid red, which break out in malignant fevers; a purple fever.
PURPURISH. adj. [from purple.] Somewhat purple.
I could change the colour, and make it purplish. Boyle.
PURPORT. n. f. [purporie, Fr. purporie, Lat.] Design; tendency of a writing or discourse.
That Plato intended nothing less, is evident from the whole scope and purport of that dialogue. Norris.
TO PURPORT. v. a. [from the noun.] To intend; to tend to show.
There was an article against the reception of the rebels, purporting, that if any such rebel should be required of the prince confederate, that the prince confederate should command him to avoid the country. Bacon's Henry VII.
They in moist grave and solemn wife unfolded Matter, which little purported, but words
PURPOSE. n. f. [propositus, Fr. propositum, Lat.]
1. Intention; design.
He quit the house of purpose, that their punishment
Might have the freer course. Shaksp. King Lear.
Change this purpose,
Which being so horrible, so bloody, must Lead on to some foul issue. Shaksp.
He with troops of horsemen beset the passages of purpose, that when the army should set forward, he might in the streights, fit for his purpose, set upon them. Knolles.
And I persuade me God hath not permitted
His strength again to grow, were not his purpose.
To use him farther yet. Milton's Agonistes.
St. Austin hath laid down a rule to this very purpose. Burn.
They, who are desirous of a name in painting, should read and make observations of such things as they find for their purpose. Dryden's Dufresnoy.
He travelled the world, on purpose to converse with the most learned men. Guardian, N<sup>o</sup> 165.
The common materials, which the ancients made their ships of, were the ornus or wild ash; the fir was likewise used for this purpose. Arbutnot.
I do this, on purpose to give you a more sensible impression of the imperfection of your knowledge. Watson.
Where men err against this method, it is usually on purpose, and to shew their learning. Swift.
2. Effect; consequence.
To small purpose had the council of Jerusalem been assembled, if once their determination being set down, men might afterwards have defended their former opinions. Hester.
The ground will be like a wood, which keepeth out the sun, and so continueth the wet, whereby it will never graze, to purpose that year. Bacon's Nat. Hist.
Their design is a war, whenever they can open it with a prospect of succeeding to purpose. Temple.
Such first principles will serve us to very little purpose, and we shall be as much at a loss with, as without them, if they may, by any human power, such as is the will of our teachers, or opinions of our companions, be altered or lost in us. Locke.
He that would relish success to purpose, should keep his passion cool, and his expectation low. Collier on Desires.
What the Romans have done is not worth notice, having had little occasion to make use of this art, and what they have of it to purpose being borrowed from Aristotle. Baker.
3. Instance; example.
'Tis common for double-dealers to be taken in their own snarcs, as for the purpose in the matter of power. L'Estr.
TO PURPOSE. v. a. [from the noun.] To intend; to design;
to resolve.
What he did purpose, it was the pleasure of God that Solomon his son should perform. Hester.
It is a purpos'd thing, and grows by plot,
To curb the nobility. Shaksp. Coriolanus.
I am purpos'd, that my mouth shall not transgress. Pf. xvii.
This is the purpose that is purpos'd upon the whole earth. Jl. xiv. 26.
Paul purpos'd in the spirit, to go to Jerusalem. Acts xix. 21.
The christian captains, purposing to retire home, placed on each side of the army four ranks of waggons. Knolles.
The whole included race his purpos'd prey. Milton.
Oaths were not purpos'd more than law,
To keep the good and just in awe,
But to confine the bad and sinful,
Like moral cattle in a pinfold. Hudibras.
Doubling my crime, I promise and deceive,
Purpose to slay, whilst swearing to forgive. Prior.
